

By Mackey W. Hill

The administration's congressional policy seems to be unfolding at a satisfactory pace. The senate recently put its approval to the long-debated St. Lawrence seaway project. This marks a vital step towards opening mid-western Great Lake ports to ocean-going transports.

On the Bricker amendment issue the President took a decisive stand. He appears to be unalterable in his position to this proposal that would handicap the powers of the executive branch of government. Eisenhower is rejecting these efforts to cut down the presidency to a size that would substantially weaken its powers in negotiating and determining foreign policy.

In his economic report, the President marked out the administration's point of view relative to the place that business should play in the American economy in the immediate future. He is doing all he can to encourage business to play a vigorous role in the present situation. Business should take its rightful place in the economy with minimum restrictions from the government.

Business has been pleading for just this chance. Now in the process of transition from a war-time to a peace-time economy, the economic need for expansion should and can be met by business. The administration is trying to give to business every encouragement that can help them take the initiative. The economy should expand under the leadership of private business. Thus Ike is for business playing its rightful role in the national economy. The alternative the President implies is that if business defaults in its present opportunity and responsibility, then the government must resume, although very reluctantly, then the government must resume, a decisive role in the American economy to stop depression.

It is still doubtful as to whether any thing of abiding significance will come out of the Berlin Big Four conference. At least America's Dulles has been standing toe to toe with Russia's Molotov. Whether anything besides oratorical exchanges will transpire remains to be seen. At least Molotov's efforts to split the West has failed.

Musicians to Play In Evening Concert

The 60-piece Lewis and Clark college symphonic band under the directorship of John Keiel Richards will present a concert Friday, February 5, at 8 p. m. in the Newberg high school auditorium.

Vocal soloist, lyric-soprano Bonnie Newberg and an instrumental trumpet trio consisting of Larry Morrell, John Bennett, and Bob Warren will be featured.

The concert is being sponsored by the Council of Presbyterian men. Admission will be $1.00 for adults and 25 cents for students.

John Richards was formerly the principal tuba player in the Portland symphonic orchestra. This performance is one in a series of concerts recently presented in this area.

Second Semester Enrollment Decreases; Class of '54 Outnumbers Junior Students

Enrollment for the spring semester at George Fox college shows a slight decrease at present.

The freshman class is largest with 31 students. The sophomore class has 20 members. Seniors outnumber juniors with a total of 18. The junior class is smallest with only 13 members. There are four special students and one post graduate, all men. The total shows 87 students, 46 men and 41 women. Not all students are believed to be registered yet, however. Not included in these figures are the 25 persons attending the college's night classes.

New students this semester are Rosetta Ballard, Marion Comfort, Bob Hodson, Loren Mills, and Art Simpson.

Rosetta attended Friends Bible college in Haviland, Kansas, two years, and George Fox two years. She has now returned to complete her graduation requirements in order that she may teach next fall. She is also taking Portland State extension courses at present. Rosetta is a home economics major.

Marion Comfort, sophomore, has been working in Lewiston, Idaho, since his army discharge six months ago. He previously attended one year; one semester in 1947, the other in 1949 at George Fox (then Pacific). Marion plans to major in science.

Bob Hodson, now classified as a special student, attended George Fox one semester in 1953. His wife and son are here with him. Bob is a ministerial student.

Loren Mills graduated from George Fox (then Pacific) college in 1949. Since his graduation he has taken some post-graduate work here, has taught week-day

Carl Reed Reveals Tentative Schedule For Choir Concerts

The George Fox college a cappella choir will give its first concert February 28 at Hillsboro Friends church. Other stops before the annual tour include churches in Marion, Shedd, Amity, Camas, and Multnomah.

The proposed choir tour for 1954 is scheduled for March 26 to April 5, during spring vacation. A chartered bus will make the 11-day trip through Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.

Pinkleton Party-Pooper Preaches Platform of Perfect Poet

By Sam Farmer

With bleary and blood-shot eyes I wearily picked my way over the remains of a peanut butter sandwich, two slightly decomposed oranges, a pair of socks (dirty), that had seen more useful days, and an odd assortment of papers, pear cores, and other debris—such that are usually found cluttering the floors of a college dorm.

The reason for my decrepit condition was not that I had failed semester exams or been struck by a campus hot-rod, but rather, I was a victim of surrounding conditions. For example, Monday, Thomas R. Pinkleton, freshman, had reached the venerable age of twenty and therefore, celebrated the occasion with a party that concluded at the hour of one (a. m.) with his being thrown into a bathtub amid much loud railery from his guests, both the invited and self-invited. The result of this gathering was a discoloring of the plaster on the ceilings of the rooms below the bath and loss of sleep for those of us not up to such a festive evening (and morning). Tuesday and Wednesday had followed much the same pattern as Monday with the exception that no one had a birthday for an excuse. Two light bulbs, a mirror and a piece of wallboard from a closet were the only casualties from these two days however.

Now, who can attain anyone, for, as everyone knows, "college men are gentlemen" and, as gentlemen their behavior can be not but collegiate. All of us are out to make a mark in the world but some seem to be satisfied with a ring in a bathtub or a scar on the floor.

Morning manifests itself and as Shakespeare wrote: "Our revels now are ended. These our actors, as I foretold you, were all spirits and are melted into air, into thin air." The Tempest, Act iv, Scene 1.

Our Editorial Policy

The new editor of a college newspaper is expected to outline his "editorial policy" when he publishes the first issue. Certainly the newspaper is important to the students and friends of the college.

It is the task of the editorial staff to publish the bi-weekly paper of George Fox college entitled The Crescent. As we endeavor to present the campus news, we will strive to publish that which is worthy of creditable journalism. This cannot be accomplished without cooperation of everyone.

We, as co-editors, want The Crescent to be a paper that will be appreciated and read by students, parents and friends who are informed and pleased by our news coverage.

To local merchants we are eager to present a paper in which they will be proud to display their ads.

We welcome criticism and suggestions from our readers as we strive to maintain the high level of journalistic standards that have been presented before us. To do this, we need your help.

We, the staff of The Crescent, face the new year before us, we hope that The Crescent will be more than just "the paper." We want it to be a vital, living symbol of the enthusiastic spirit that is typical of our college.

—A.B. and F.P.

What Sign Do You Heed?

Joshua 3:4 "—Ye have not passed this way heretofore."

As we enter the new semester, we are coming into a new road. We are beginning over again. Every year, every day, every task, every lesson has a new beginning. When God made the world, he made it this way on purpose in order that we might have new beginnings. The journey of life would be tedious, tiresome, and monotonous if there were no new beginnings, no new changes. However, it takes more than a good beginning to get us to our destination. We must not only begin to go, but we must watch where we are going. O. S. Holmes has said, "The greatest thing in this world is not so much where we are but in what direction we are moving."

This new semester leads two ways. One street leads to "work half done." This very inviting, but you leads to "work half done." This is very inviting, but you men and women who have gone that way. "I thought it would be easiest, but it has proved hardest. It has not taken me where I wanted to go. Wrong road."

Or some one may take you by the arm and try to lead you down the road of "harmful amusements." You will soon see signs, "Do not enter here."

Those who have entered where the signs read, "Enter here," use their time and opportunities wisely. Someone has said, "Character is built out of circumstances." From exactly the same material one man builds palaces, while another builds hovels. The same opportunities come to us; the same choices as to which door to enter. Yet how differently we write the record of our lives.

If we institute a good beginning, move in the right direction, make right choices and use opportunities, the best of our past will very likely be the worst of our future.

Joshua 3:4 "—Ye have not passed this way heretofore." And it might be added, we shall not pass this way again.

Letter to the Editor

I did some investigating this week and found that the Crescent cash balance is in the red. I suppose since everyone has just finished paying their expenses for second semester, this isn't a very appropriate time to bring this up, but the Crescent does need some help. About 800 Crescents are printed each issue and approximately 485 of these are sent to $25 club members. The books show only about 25 subscriptions so far this year. Unless money comes in from somewhere, the Crescent will be facing a $300.00 debt by the end of the year.

We helped the L'Ami my paying $3.50 for our copy and we did it because we all want a copy of the '54 L'Ami. Do we want copies of the Crescent too? I'm not suggesting that we all have to dig into our pockets for more money that we don't have, but we might think of something that could help the Crescent raise their cash balance and keep it that way until this year is over.

Probe Into Child's Literature Discloses Innocent Wolf Subject of Discrimination

By Virginia Cox

The average American citizen usually considers himself as one who is just and fair when deciding whether or not to condemn a person. In a study of this nature, it was found that people very often are more unjust than just. Consider the case of little Red Riding Hood for example. It is generally accepted that the Wolf is entirely and without question to blame for the incident. Who, may I ask ever stopped to consider the Wolf's view of the story? It is our duty to listen with open minds to the other side of the story.

It seems that the Wolf had just become engaged and was feeling kind-hearted toward everyone. "Be kind to the world and lead a happy life," had just become his motto. He was making his way to his home in the woods when he came upon little Red Riding Hood, who had disobeyed her parents by going off the path and picking flowers. By doing this, she had become lost and was happy to see the smiling face of the Wolf as he approached her. This wolf was indeed not the type of wolf which we think of in this day and age. He would have gone merrily on his way had not the little girl pleaded with him to show her the way to her grandmother's house.

The way was long and tiring and when little Red Riding Hood sat down to rest, she fell asleep. The Wolf, still feeling considerate, took the basket and hurried on to the grandmother's house before it became dark. He reached the home of the elderly lady just in time to catch her eloping with Widower Jones next door—what some people won't do to get into history books! She was very angry at being discovered and forced the Wolf to promise to disguise himself and keep little Red Riding Hood from finding out the truth.

The plan fell through, as everyone knows, because of the Wolf's lack of training in the field of dramatics. The woodsmen, as they ran to the rescue of Grandmother, who Red Riding Hood supposed had been devoured by the Wolf, performed an operation on the Wolf, leaving him crippled and with a morbid outlook on life. He later became a hermit and refused to have anything to do with the human race. This is all because people are too quick to blame someone for doing something wrong.

Gentleman on Campus Creates Excitation; Mystery Disclosed as Menace Unmasks

By Bob Byrd

The whole campus is buzzing with excitement over the identity of a campus big shot.

"Who is he?" they're asking.

He's been seen coming out of the Dean's office many times lately and has at times been the recipient of Mrs. Dean's irritated remarks.

The girls thrill over his manly frame, pleasant smile, and carefree manner. The men admire the man for his friendly ways and terrific physique.

This guy is not only handsome, manly, friendly, gay, and an aspiring young pianist, but he is a brilliant student of the three R's. He enjoys collecting guns, girls, and through the insistence of one of the women of his life—music. However his chief hobby is firing caps.

Although he likes the opposite gender he thinks they lack one of life's most necessary abilities, the ability to smell gun smoke—especially in bed rooms.

Being a wit, he remarked upon being questioned one evening after returning from a vigorous workout at basketball that he had not made any baskets—he used the ones already there.

Hail campus hero, Melvin McNichols.

Melvin is now in the first grade at Central school in Newberg. His favorite subject is "Skip-a-long workbook". His parents are the Dean and Mrs. McNichols, both teachers on the George Fox college faculty.

Master McNichols is six years old and was born in Glendale California.

Melvin's best girl friend at the moment is probably Priscilla Doble, GFC class of '52, now a teacher at Sprinkbrook. Priscilla lives with the McNichols and spends quite a bit of time with this young man about the campus.

However, there is another rival for this young man's fancy. Her name is Nadine Shrauk, a charming young first grader in Melvin's class. He describes her as being "about the size of first graders, maybe a little shorter." "Her hair is sort of brown," he added.

Melvin says, "We have an old boy in our class, too. He is seven years old. This guy sits at a desk of his own and is a good citizen, but when he sat with someone else, he just talked and talked and talked."

Gold Q Banquet

The Gold Q is planning its annual banquet for Saturday evening, March 12th. Those invited include present and past members and their guests. The group plans to attend a play, "Noah," by Obey, at Linfield College before the banquet. Arrangements for the dinner have not yet been completed.

Home Economists Attend Career Day

A career day, sponsored by the Home Economists in Business, was held in Mary Cullen's cottage of the Journal building Monday evening, February 1. Several different phases of home economics as a career were presented to the guests.

Barbara Angel, KPTV performer, was one of the main speakers of a panel consisting of top home economists of the Portland vicinity.

The home economics teacher and two student representatives attended from surrounding colleges. Helen Willcuts, Virginia Cox and Rosetta Ballard attended from George Fox college.

Before the meeting to which high school girls were also invited, a dinner was served to the home economists and college representatives.

A waffle supper for the sophomore class is scheduled for Tuesday, February 9, 6:00 p. m., at the home of Marcille Fankhauser, class secretary.

Audrey Comfort and Sandra Lordyke, social chairmen, are in charge of the evening.

George Fox Alumni Assume Positions

Donna Flaughter, former student during '49-50, is now a physical therapist at a Longview, Washington, hospital. She graduated from the University of Washington after which she received special training in physical therapy in San Francisco.

Many graduates of GFC during the past few years have entered the teaching profession. Kenneth Miller, graduate of '50, is teaching at Eola Grade school near Salem. Maurice Magee, '49 graduate, is a fourth grade instructor in the Seattle public school system.

Two former students of George Fox college are holding down similar positions in the Christian Business and Professional Women's council. Adele Briggs, former student, '46-'47, is chairman of the group in Portland. Verna Keller, graduate of '50, is chairman of the same Christian organization in Salem.

Singing Men Concert

The February 23 chapel, to be sponsored by the Singing Men of George Fox college, will present the Lewis and Clark college Glee Men in a concert in Wood-Mar auditorium.

Former student and graduate of GFC, Klane Robison, is singing with the group.

SMA Contest

The Student Ministerial association is sponsoring a scripture memorization contest February 15 through March 12. Competition is individual and inter-class. Awards will be presented to individual and class winners. Judges are Dr. Arthur Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Smith. A list of selected scriptures will be posted and given to each contestant.

FTA Schedule

The Amos Stanbrough chapter of Future Teachers of America of George Fox college will meet Wednesday, February 10, immediately following prayer meeting in the college dining hall with Dr. Paul H. Wood, professor of psychology and education and FTA advisor, as speaker. This meeting is rescheduled for Wednesday to avoid conflict with L'Ami pictures to be taken Monday evening.

Following the Wednesday meeting, the organization will meet regularly on the third Tuesday evening of each month for the remainder of the school year, including March 16, April 20, and May 18, with special programs planned for each session.

Everyone interested in the teaching profession and education and psychology is invited to attend the meetings and participate in FTA activities at George Fox college.

Information from Dean's Desk Disclosed; Proposition of Accreditation Progressing

Dean McNichols and wife, Lydia, attended Pacific University for the inauguration of Charles J. Armstrong Tuesday, February 2. They participated in convocation exercises in the morning. The luncheon was held at one o'clock with the inauguration exercise at three o'clock.

The one-hundredth anniversary celebration of the college was attended by approximately forty representatives from nearby schools.

Dean McNichols has been working on the problem of accreditation for George Fox college. He states that we are now in the process of contact by the Higher Commission in Northwest Association toward evaluation of a program to determine what is required.

Maintenance Men Improve Drainage

Flooded conditions in the basement of Wood-Mar hall during the rain and snow season have prompted the maintenance department of George Fox college to improve the drainage system away from the building.

J. D. Baker and John Davies, head maintenance men, are working to provide an eight-inch drain all the way from the administration building to the canyon where the tile ends.

Heretofore, eight-inch tile has led away from Wood-Mar hall, and farther along the route the drainage line has been reduced to six-inch tubing. After having located the juncture, Baker and Davies are working to provide adequate drainage the entire distance from the hall to the canyon.

Sports Scoreboard

A 30-point performance against Reed recently, followed by 22 counters in the Multnomah Bible game, gave Darwin "Cub" Grimm 155 points in six Metropolitan conference games, to put the Quaker star well on the way toward a second straight MCC scoring crown. If Grimm continues his present pace he will break the conference scoring record which he set last year, with 212 points in nine games.

George Fox players have taken league scoring honors in each of the last three seasons. In 1951 Nigel Shockey scored 207 points. The next year Shockey bucketed an even 200 counters.

This year's squad has won nine games while losing only four. Though the team averages only five feet eleven inches, a good fast break and top conditioning have paid off for the Quakers.

Ralph Beebe

Cub Grimm, who stands six feet one inch, plays one forward. The other forward position is held down by five foot nine inch Rolly Hartley, a sophomore transfer, who played varsity ball for Southern Oregon College of Education last year. During his high school days at Talent, Oregon, Hartley was twice selected outstanding player at the SOCE invitational tournament. The spirited forward has scored 86 points in conference play and 180 during the entire season. Don Lamm, a six foot sophomore from Greenleaf, Idaho, is the top reserve forward.

Another Greenleaf man, Orville Winters, six feet two inches, is the usual starting center. Alternate center is football star Dick Zeller, Salem, who stands six feet.

Verne Martin, a local Newberg boy, is team captain. He stands five feet ten inches and is a senior guard. The other guard position is played by Clint Brown, five foot eight inch Shedd, Oregon, junior.

Tonight the Quakers meet Oregon Dental, the only team to beat them in conference play. The experienced "Yankers" share the league lead with GFC and Reed. When George Fox and Oregon Dental met in December, the Dentists quickly rolled up a 20-point lead. Then the Quakers caught fire and nearly won it, only to be downed by a last period Oregon Dental surge.

Rolly Hartley and Verne Martin scored 12 points each to lead the Quakers.

In the second canto the blue and gold from the college continued their fast breaking and ballhandling technique to increase their lead to 19 points for a half time score of 42 to 23.

The George Fox college Quakers, currently in a three-way tie for leadership of the Metropolitan conference, this Saturday, February 6, host the University of Oregon Dental school, also in the top trio, for the crucial conference contest of the week-end. Tip-up time for the Hester gym varsity affair is 8:15 p. m., with the two junior varsity squads meeting for the 6:30 p. m. encounter.

Last week as GFC dropped an exhibition tilt to Northwest Nazarene, Reed dumped Oregon Medical and the Dentals tripped Concordia to again knot the tight race.

Coach George Bales will probably nominate Rolly Hartley and "Cub" Grimm to the starting forward slots; with either Orville Winters or Dick Zeller as center; and guard possibilities Verne Martin and Clint Brown.

Next week-end two evenings of basketball entertainment are on the Hester gym calendar. Friday, February 12, the University of Oregon Medical school quintet returns for the second contest of the two-game Metro-conference series. The Balesmen January 8 upset the Medics 57-48 for the initial victory of the new year. A junior varsity mix precedes the conference clash.

Saturday, February 13 the Linfield Deltas play a twin bill with the Quaker quintets on the local maple beginning at 6:30 p. m. GFC downed the Fraternity five 79-59 in a pre-Christmas contest here.
